FLIES ON JOB; SWAT 'EM QUICK, WARD ADVISES

With the rise of the thermometer yesterday to a height which eclipsed all former records of the year, the vanguard of the army of the common summer pest, the fly, appeared in Ogden. The appearance of the buzzing disease carriers caused the issuance of an appeal to all residents of Ogden by J. Ray Ward, commissioner of public safety, to procure "swatters" and get into action.

Efforts will be made this year to obtain the co-operation of Ogden residents in the "swat-the-fly" movement as early as possible in order that breeding may be curtailed. It has been announced that one fly killed now will eliminate the breeding of several thousand later in the season, so intense action during the coming week on the part of Ogden people will accomplish much toward the wiping out of the fly in the city.

The title of the picture is "Desert Love" and it is needless to say Tom fully lives up to his reputation in fighting for and winning the love of the western girl.

Protest Proposed Ban on Highway Materials

Protests are being sent to Thomas Dewitt Chrysler, chairman of the interstate commerce commission at Washington, D. C., and to R. H. Ashton, president of the American Railway association, also at Washington, D. C., regarding the reported intention of the Association of Railway Executives, urging the interstate commerce commission to refuse cars and transportation for all highway work—both that already under way and new—in order to divert materials to the railroad field.

Secretary O. J. Stillwell of the Ogden chamber of commerce says that all state highway city and county officials, commercial clubs, chambers of commerce and other kindred organizations have been urged to vigorously protest the curtailment of this most important phase of the nation's development. The protests will emphasize the necessity of continuing essential road work for further relieving transportation conditions and assisting in the distribution of food, fuel and other essential commodities.

WAR ON LAWN PEST OUTLINED

Dandelions to Be Eradicated;
Scouts and Civic Clubs to Help City

With the appearance of an unusual crop of dandelions this year, which are declared to be killing off lawns in practically all parts of the city, a campaign is to be inaugurated in Ogden seeking their eradication, according to an announcement made this morning by Mayor Frank Francis. The city executive gave his support to the move following a conference with Albert B. Foulger, who reported the situation and urged that efforts be made to eliminate the growth which is detrimental to all city lawns.

Co-operation of the Boy Scouts of Ogden has been secured, the Scout officials have pledged that the boys will go through the lawns in all city parks and dip up dandelion plants. Every citizen of the city will be urged during the campaign, which begins next Monday and closes Saturday, to eliminate the flower growths on their lawns. In this manner, it is believed that the spread of the plants can be curbed before going to seed.

Women's clubs and all civic organizations in the city will be requested to aid in the campaign, Mr. Foulger declared this morning.

London dressmakers drop in to see the sketches and plan their work accordingly. There are no heavy trains as of old, though small ones may be worn. BERT LYTELL SCORES BIG AT UTAH

Special Children's Matinee
Saturday

So consummately skilful an actor is Bert Lytell that with each successive appearance there is necessary in the spectator's mind a process of readjustment. One says to himself: "He's not at all like his last self, but it must be Bert Lytell, for the titles in the pictures say so."

Which is all by way of saying that in "Alias Jimmy Valentine," a screen version of the famous Paul Armstrong crook play, which is as well-known as the movies themselves, Mr. Lytell has a role utterly different from either his characters in "Lombardi, Ltd." or in "The Right of Way," and he enacts the popular part of Jimmy with such extraordinary cleverness that one never stops to think that it's acting at all.

Probably many who saw the picture last evening at the Utah theatre have seen the play done on the stage; and no doubt many of the throng that is sure to crowd that motion picture playhouse throughout the run of "Alias Jimmy Valentine" are in a measure familiar with the story.

The comedy on this bill is sure a good one.
